

A note from Pastor Owen...

It seems to me that one of the great marks of a right relationship with God is that I can begin to talk to God in prayer as the person I am right now, warts and all! I need not first become the person I would like to be or the person that I think God would like me to be. Because of what Christ did on the cross on my behalf, I can now enjoy a relationship with God based on love and dependency rather than fear and rules. I see my sins and dark depravity, but because I have admitted my guilt to the Lord and received His forgiveness, I am now free to come into His presence as one cleansed, washed and pardoned! Many of us confuse the good news of Jesus with 'religion'. We have wasted our time and destroyed ourselves and others by having to maintain some sort of righteous stance. I believe the gospel is for those who understand that they are not righteous, yet claim the gift that God offers...His pardon, new birth and unconditional love. Only then can we be honest and comfortable in His presence and fully celebrate His grace.
