

A note from Pastor Owen Scott...

I have learned over the years that the practice of prayer has to do primarily with “self-surrender”. Prayer demands that I pray with my life...body, soul and spirit. I must come completely to Him. “Lord, here I am. I’ve come to be with you. I love you with all of my heart. All that I know about me, I give to all that I know about you. Lord Jesus, I love you and praise you with all of my heart. I have come to commune with you and to gaze at you and behold your greatness”. Without this heart-felt connection, I find myself very ordinary. Without prayer our church is very ordinary...and without attraction. Prayer deepens and heightens life in every way. Thank him for everything for everything furthers you deeper into God if you let it.
