

A note from Pastor Owen Scott...

One thing I've discovered about life is that things don't always work out the way we would like. There is in most of us, if we are truly honest, an aching sense of unfulfillment. I'm still looking for the individual that told me that if I accepted Christ, my problems would be over...not true. Life still hurts Christ didn't die to deliver us from the harsh realities of life. Some days are filled with endless trouble...broken marriages, chemotherapy, lustful thoughts, aging parents, hurtful words from a friend, death of a loved one, an unwanted pregnancy, loneliness, financial woes...and on and on the list grows. My counsel to people facing such desolating and painful experiences is this...In some strange way, the good news about trouble is that it can lead to our personal wholeness. God is able to put to good use the suffering of our unfulfillment. He does this in three ways...1) He shows us how much we need Him...2) He enters our emptiness...3) He transforms us to become more and more like His Son. He doesn't always take away the pain, but He does make our troubles purposeful and redemptive and life-giving, so that we are truly able to cope and even overcome."
