

A note from Pastor Owen Scott...

It is always the business of every believer to help other Christians to become more like the Lord. If someone is overtaken in a fault, we are to pray for him, not condemn him. Jesus sought to encourage Peter when he fell, not punish him. God's plan is always to restore. The Bible is full of instructions to love one another, exhort one another, comfort one another, forgive one another, pray for one another and prefer one another. We are all called to "perfect the saints" (Ephesians 4:12). And the amazing thing is that as we help in the perfecting of others, we are perfected ourselves! Working on ourselves all the time does little to mature us. Our growth comes most quickly, but indirectly, as we seek to help and encourage and grow the other believers around us. This is exciting work to be involved with. Our motto at Valley Church ought to be..."To know Christ ourselves...and to help others to know Him better".
